

ISOS Course: How to Turn a Good Paper Into an Excellent One

Dr. Heike Langenberg
Chief Editor, Nature Geoscience, London

7 November 2011 | 09:00 - 12:00

Readers of scientific journals often have only little time to spend on catching up with the literature.

The workshop will explore ways of presenting scientific findings that maximize their impact under these conditions. Participants will practice the art of summarizing the essence of a text in a few words without distorting the meaning, and they will develop an awareness where the most important messages should be placed in a paper.

Venue: Leibnizstraße 1, room 204
