ISOS Course:

Student or Player?

Different roles in professional life

Kate Simmons, Avan Antia

14 November 2012 | 14:00-18:00h; 15 November 2012 | 9:00h-13:00h

28 November 2012 | 14:00-18:00h; 29 November 2012 | 9:00h-13:00h

Do you know what distinguishes a student from a powerful player in science? If you don't, you may be missing out on your potential. How you present yourself, not only at conferences but also in every-day professional life, can highly impact your success.

In this purely hands-on course, you examine your own roles and project these in various situations of professional life. You learn where your leverages are in team meetings and job interviews, at conferences and interacting with your peers. At the end of the workshop, you will be able to define how you wish to be seen and effectively convey this in your interactions.

Venue: Leibnizstraße 1, room 105b
